

Benjamin (BJ) Emerson | Teaching Philosophy

My teaching philosophy extends from my identity as a creator of flourishing storytellers. Through my teaching I desire to move students forward, encouraging their creativity and helping them understand elements of story in a variety of formats and platforms. It is my desire to see them using their design skills and creativity to not only express their unique voice and talents but to also create value for others.